GREAT DEAL OF ENJOYMENT FOR VERY LITTLE MONEY.

Rockaway beach is something after the same order as Coney Island. The rabble go there and the crowd is often objectionable; but Far Rockaway, a short distance further on, is very different. It takes only a little loan associations have solved this problem.

Our city already has practically three of these associations in the full tide of successful operation; but they have been found cessful operation; but they have been found is 70 cents. I found such a pretty creature standing just where the little ingoing ripple ran over her feet, and not even a fold of her white friends came out of the water to her to ask further out I undertook to be her try for a good time. I belonged always to that long line of straw-hattest females who bobbed up and down on the same rope every day and still had "a beautiful time." Men might come and women might go and sien might come and women might go and fling a sneer at those who "imagined they were having a good time" in that idi-otic position, but the fact remained that we did have fun and came out of the water as freshened and happy as if we belonged to those who "do and care." As for me, I felt after each bath so revivified and so rich. > A BASSWOOD CANOE. What a royal time be has! A ba swood once to go out with him. Of course, I was afraid. I always am. But then I have been told that one more wink with one eyeash than the other is followed by a capsize That seems to be the only definition I ever had of a canoa. Still I accepted, for it was night and the water in the inlet was perfectly smooth. I obediently put myself in one end, while the boy knelt at the other to nanage the one paddle. The water was overel with small boats at anchor, the one light in each reflecting the sails and making shadows below. We followed a skiff for a time which had in it a great headlight which the fisherman was using while he "jacked" cels. Everything was so still; even the paddle made no more sound than that of a gondolfer, and it seemed impossible that this could be the notive sheet of water where the boats soud by continuously during the day.

The next day, further on down at the mouth of the slip, the boys took the cancel into the surf to harpoon sharks. It sounded rather startling to me until I found they were not of the man-eating kind. They really speared one, but it made off with the home-made harpoon and gave a chance to the irrepressible small sister, who had not been allowed to go, to say: "If you will fasten a hairpin on to a toothpick what can

I could not but be amused at the thingthe sea throws on shore down here. The mouth of the inlet is some distance from us, but it is at that point the collection is com-plete. Some one said it was a pity Robin-son Crusoe should not have been wrecked in convenient a spot. Besides every kind jar, and can, and cooking utensil, shipwrecked dolls lie out on the sand doing "Paul and Virginia," and nine rubber balls testified to nine broken bearts in the breasts of little boys who had thrown their treas-ures out too far. Whatever has been lost all along that Long island coast the sea gives up there; but it is far enough away not to disturb the lathers. Along with the boating and bathing w have fishing and snipe shooting, and, on shore, tennis and horseback riding. When he tide is low we drive over to the bar, farther down at the outlet, and the sound of horses' hoofs on the firm, smooth beach realls the shore at Galveston where the shell are ground to powder. The salt spray blow ing in our faces is a health bath of itself.
